

CME Group Center for Innovation honors Jimmy Wales, 2012 Winner
of the Fred Arditti Innovation Award

Sharing the power of information.

JIMMY WALES
Founder, Wikipedia

Jimmy Wales is an Internet entrepreneur, wiki pioneer and technology visionary. He is best known as the founder and promoter of the online non-profit encyclopedia Wikipedia, now the fifth most popular website in the world. A former futures and options research director, Wales co-founded Wikia in 2004, a privately owned, free web-hosting service. As part of this work, Wales is developing a human-powered search engine based on the same open, transparent, community-driven principles of Wikia and Wikipedia.

CME Group Center for Innovation is pleased to recognize the breakthroughs in information access and transparency made possible by Wales and to present him with the 2012 Fred Arditti Innovation Award. The award honors an individual or group whose innovative ideas, products or services created significant change in the world's markets, commerce and trade. As the world's leading and most diverse derivatives marketplace, CME Group serves the risk management needs of customers around the globe. For more information on the CME Group Center for Innovation, visit www.cmegroup.com/cfi.

