Notice #: Q2008 - 056
Subject: Change to March 2008 Contract Expiration Date Due to Good Friday Holiday -- UPDATED INFORMATION

Please note that the expiration dates/times that are highlighted below, for the CBOT DJIA Products, represent a departure from prior CBOT expiration procedures. This is a result of the harmonization of expiration procedures for legacy CBOT stock index futures and options and CME stock index futures and options.

CME Group Equity Index futures and options will expire on Thursday, March 20, 2008, instead of Friday, March 21, 2008, due to the Good Friday Holiday, per the following:

- The open outcry trading of expiring contracts will conclude at the close of the regular trading hours on Wednesday, March 19, 2008.
- Trading of expiring E-mini equity index futures and options contracts will conclude prior to the open of regular open outcry trading hours on Thursday, March 20, 2008. Expiration dates/times by contract are provided in the table below.
- For the purpose of the "front month" designation, the rollover date will remain as Thursday, March 13, 2008.
- The March 2008 Nikkei 225 Index contracts expire in the prior week, so their March 2008 expiration date is not impacted by the exchange holiday.
